PROFILE

Nine years at one brand, working across four departments in brand and customer marketing — each move a step into new territory. Wanting to apply that experience beyond the company, I began consulting for an independent store in 2020 and continue that work today. I have chosen the next challenge over staying comfortable, and because I know the weight of that choice, I see every decision through to the end. I believe outstanding results come from respect and a positive attitude. Delivering results in areas that are new to me is what I find most rewarding, and I intend to keep growing that way — taking on the unfamiliar and owning the outcome.
